To whom it may concern,

Thibault joined Wavestone as a business analyst (intern) based in Manhattan in April 2022. During his time in the US, he was involved in 2 technical client projects, and 3 internal strategic missions.

On the client side, Thibault worked on key engagements for the company - Fortune 1000 clients - both on cybersecurity and cloud migration missions. He was able to demonstrate the client-focused mindset and business acumen of a consultant, while being able to perform complex technical analyses as a specialized engineer.

From an internal perspective Thibault was involved in the life of the firm in a proactive way, working on highly strategic projects such as the steering of US sales performance, the development of our Machine Learning and Data Lab asset, and the strengthening of the firm's corporate culture.

All the teams he worked with had very positive feedback. Common themes included his diligence, strong ability to learn, and positive attitude.

Overall, Thibault exceeded expectations for a business analyst intern. I would be happy to work with him again and I sincerely recommend him.
